

Did you know that you have the right to refuse to dissect animals in New Brunswick?

It's true! Each year, countless animals (including frogs, cats, and fetal pigs) are cruelly killed and then cut up in classrooms across the country—even though humane alternatives exist. Studies have shown that students who use alternatives to dissection perform just as well as—if not better than—students who cut up animals. You don't have to dissect animals! Explain to your teacher that you won't be dissecting and that the minister of education supports student choice in New Brunswick:

In New Brunswick, there are no requirements in our curriculum to complete dissections, actual or virtual. However, if teachers chose to include plant or animal dissections as an instructional technique, they would be expected to respond to students' concerns and to provide an option for virtual dissection.

Dissection is unnecessary and cruel. Stand up for animals, and exercise your rights. Choose not to dissect.

For more information or to get involved, visit PETAKids.com or e-mail us at PETAKids@peta.org.

PETAkids

© iStock.com/HueyJelen

Did you know that you have the right to refuse to dissect animals in New Brunswick?

It's true! Each year, countless animals (including frogs, cats, and fetal pigs) are cruelly killed and then cut up in classrooms across the country—even though humane alternatives exist. Studies have shown that students who use alternatives to dissection perform just as well as—if not better than—students who cut up animals. You don't have to dissect animals! Explain to your teacher that you won't be dissecting and that the minister of education supports student choice in New Brunswick:

In New Brunswick, there are no requirements in our curriculum to complete dissections, actual or virtual. However, if teachers chose to include plant or animal dissections as an instructional technique, they would be expected to respond to students' concerns and to provide an option for virtual dissection.

Dissection is unnecessary and cruel. Stand up for animals, and exercise your rights. Choose not to dissect.

For more information or to get involved, visit PETAKids.com or e-mail us at PETAKids@peta.org.

PETAkids

© iStock.com/HueyJelen